“Frederick Douglass 200 Creative Arts Competition.”

THEME: Following In His Footsteps

ABOUT FREDERICK DOUGLASS

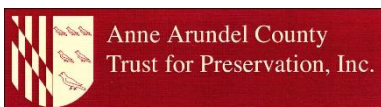

2018 marks the "Year of Frederick Douglass" in Maryland, and what better way to celebrate his life than through student voices and creative expression! Born Frederick Augustus Washington Bailey (1818-1895) in Talbot County, Maryland, Frederick Douglass was the first African American to gain international fame as a social crusader. Douglass helped lead the antislavery movement and also fought for women's rights.

Douglass understood that “reading was his pathway from slavery to freedom”.

Anne Arundel County students, grades 4 through 12, are invited to participate in the “Frederick Douglass 200 Creative Arts Competition” and “Follow In His Footsteps”.

Send an “I am interested” note with your name, contact information and school & grade to nacpsnews@gmail.com or call 410 533-1977.
