

BANNER-DOUGLASS MUSEUM PRESENTS

2021 Anti-Racism Coalition

Creating Meaningful Experiences that Combat Systemic Racism

Dr. David Olawuyi Fakunle

David Olawuyi Fakunle, Ph.D. is a “mercenary for change,” employing any skill and occupying any space to help elevate everyone divested from their truest self, especially those who are Black, Indigenous and People of Color. David's interests include stressors within the built environment, societal manifestations of racism, and the use of arts and culture to strengthen health, equity, and ultimately liberation.

Nicole A. Johnson

Nicole A. Johnson has over twenty years of experience in executive leadership, program development, group facilitation and resource development. In 2016, Nicole founded Extraordinary Changes to provide quality consultation to the individuals, informal groups, advocates and organizations serving children and youth. Nicole's professional experience is built upon a foundation of academic study, and a passion for children, families and hard-working people in under-served communities.

William Jernigan

For the past two decades, William has provided proven leadership and exemplary service to a host of targeted populations in various roles within city and state government, the healthcare industry and non-profit sector. Currently, Mr. Jernigan serves as the Director of Prevention Services and Maryland's Statewide Racial and Ethnic Disparities Coordinator with the Governor's Office of Crime Prevention, Youth, and Victim Services.

Johanna Doty

Johanna Doty is a Programming and Outreach Coordinator for the Anne Arundel County Public Library (AACPL). She is passionate about connecting the community with enriching and inspiring educational experiences through library programs such as STEM Day, the Human Library and Girls Who Code. She works closely with subject matter experts, community partners and nonprofit organizations to support community needs and interests.

Gina Lewis

Gina Marie Lewis is an Associate Professor of Art, Studio Art Program Coordinator at Bowie State University, and an artist/educator/activist who seeks to employ her creative and scholarly work in a quest for tangible, lasting impact in the creative resolution of social issues. Over the past year, as an Inclusion Imperative Visiting Faculty Fellow at University of Maryland Baltimore County, she has pursued interdisciplinary, community-based research on an African American Ethnohistory project with the C&O Canal National Historic Park.

Dr. Amena Johnson

Dr. Amena Johnson has had a deep commitment to youth, social justice, advocacy and educational equity. She specializes in training, facilitation and curriculum development. Amena has an extensive range of experience as a non-profit, and higher education student affairs professional. She has engaged communities in dialogue and learning around: urban bias, intersectionality, the intergenerational workplace, LGBTQ topics, and diversity and inclusion.

Maya Davis

Maya Davis is the Legislative Liaison and Research Archivist at the Maryland State Archive where she consults on statewide projects that document, interpret, and preserve African American History and Culture. Maya currently serves as a member of the Maryland Lynching Truth and Reconciliation Commission and the Maryland Commission on African American History and Culture. on Commission and the Maryland Commission on African American History and Culture.